

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides an unsymmetrical thread profile used to connect stator housings of a positive displacement motor. The unsymmetrical thread profile comprises one or more non-load bearing flanks angled with respect to the longitudinal axis of the thread profile such that the root radius is greater than the root radius of a symmetrical thread profile having substantially the same pitch and first angle.